Writing & Measuring The Effectiveness Of Student Learning Outcomes For Student Affairs Tuesday, July 9 ~ 3:00-4:00pm (Eastern)

Once the live date has passed, this training will be available on demand.

Overview

Measuring what students are learning in co-curricular, extra-curricular and support programs is now a part of student affairs professionals' reporting protocol. Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs) are a critical aspect of identifying and measuring student learning both in and out of the classroom. Additionally, SLOs are a requirement by most, if not all, accreditation agencies.

Where do you start? How do you write an effective Student Learning Outcome? How do you actually measure the SLO? What do you do with the data that is extracted from assessing an SLO? Examples of well-written and poorly written SLOs will be reviewed in this webinar. Participants will also receive an overview of appropriate measurement tools as well as examples of how SLO data has been used for change, including the use of a rubric. All are encouraged to bring current SLOs and their assessments to this webinar for feedback and exchange of ideas.

Objectives:

- Understand the importance of identifying and measuring student learning, whether vying for campus resources or demonstrating the viability and necessity of student support programs
- Differentiate between a well-written, effective Student Learning Outcome (SLO) and a poorly written, less effective SLO
- Learn how to utilize a rubric for tracking an SLO and its assessment
- Identify assessment tools for measuring SLOs
- Reflect on current SLOs and examine ways to strengthen them
- Exchange ideas and share SLOs with other webinar participants

Who Should Attend?

- 2-year & 4-year institutions
- All Student Services/Affairs Departments
- Registrar
- Accreditation Officers
- Directors of Assessment

Writing & Measuring The Effectiveness Of Student Learning Outcomes For Student Affairs

Tuesday, July 9 ~ 3:00-4:00pm (Eastern)

Speaker(s)

Kate Mueller, Ed.D

"Gone are the days when student support programs can articulate student learning through anecdotal information. While still sharing personal student success stories, we must provide evidence of the learning that is indeed occurring on a daily basis outside of the classroom. This session will help participants understand the importance of actually measuring that student learning, and making use of that data."

Kate Mueller has worked in higher education for over 33 years at small and large public and private institutions. She also worked internationally in the United Arab Emirates. She has been in the Coast Community College District for 17 years. At Orange Coast College she has held the positions of Dean of Students and Dean of Enrollment Services. She is now serving as the Vice President of Student Services at Coastline College. In addition to the more traditional areas and responsibilities of student services, she has oversight of the Extended Learning Division which includes contract education, workforce development, and military education. Areas of expertise and topics that she frequently presents and consults on include: student learning outcomes, assessment in Student Affairs, behavioral assessment and student conduct issues, and ethical leadership. She has a master of science (M.S.) in Counseling from California State University Long Beach, and a doctorate (Ed.D.) in educational leadership and higher education from The University of Nebraska-Lincoln.
